

WILL WAKEFIELD AND THE CONGRESS HOTEL

"This independently released, yet superbly produced disc has proved that his creations deserve to be heard elsewhere, everywhere. "

Steve Stav - Ink 19

"Luckily there are a handful of musicians that send their message through songwriting - bands like Counting Crows, Ryan Adams, and Death Cab for Cutie - through tales of life, love, loss and happiness. Will Wakefield and The Congress Hotel belongs with this group of songwriters."

Sidekick Staff - Spokane Sidekick

In February of 2011 the Congress Hotel finished their follow up self-titled release to their well-received album "Apt. 306." The record was written, produced, and engineered by Will Wakefield, band-leader and Berklee College of Music grad. The new self-titled release is a raw, energetic combination of edgy blues-rock and UK style melodies, with poignantly expressed lyrics.

While touring in Washington, Idaho, and Montana for "Apt. 306," the singles Katherine, and Listen were receiving airplay at various stations across the northwest. The subsequent "Live" release, from a show performed at the Crocodile Café was also a successful release among the fans.

While maintaining a following across the northwest, The Congress Hotel has performed with Brandi Carlile, The Trews, and artists such as Handful of Lovin', The Bradbury Press, and Left Hand Smoke.
